FOUR GENERATIONS - DESCENDENTS OF WILLIAM CLANCY, SR. 1772-1864
& ANNA SHARP, 1777-1811

Through the co-operation and diligent research covering four years by Edward S. Clancy, 25 New Mountain Road S., Stoney Creek, Ont., Canada, we are able to present herewith in condensed form the four generations of descendants of the marriage of William Clancy and Anna Sharp. With this information all a member of any branch of the Clancy Clan has to do is to locate his father or mother's name or those of his grandparents....draw a line down from the name and keep adding to the tree the data concerning the branch of his own particular family. By doing this his own family history will always be up to date.

William and Anna had 6 sons and 1 daughter, and these pages show children and the grandchildren of this family.

NOTE:

It is interesting to note that in just three generations the offspring from the marriage of William Clancy, 1772-1854 and Anna Sharp, 1777-1811, number up to 243 persons.

Jacob Clancy, 1830-1923 who married Jane Ann Shorts was one of 58 grandchildren of William, and as this booklet records there are 97 descendants from this marriage.

If one were to make a wild guess, the total number of descendants from William and Anna might now total up to 2,000-2,500 members of the famous CLANCY CLAN.

I see something else that may throw some light. Lampee says McKay's Corps were part of a working party dispatched back up the Hudson, when Burgoyne decided to retreat. They were employed building bridges repairing roads etc. "When within 3 miles of Ft. Edward, the threat of a serious Am. attack (my abbrevs.) necessitated the recall of 47 to the army. Loyal Volunteers found themselves confronted by a superior force and cut off. McKay sought cover of a nearby wood, was able to maintain his position, but lost 43 of his 180 men. Retreated to Ft. George then on to Ti.." So perhaps that is what they were doing when they left for M. Bay.. Any comments would be appreciated.

I am sorry this is so long and involved. I needed to try to put it down and to get an expert's opinion, although I know this is not exactly the group you are interested in.

The story should just be finished by saying that many of the men were transferred to the KRRNY and continued to serve. Paul Heck and Lawrence seem not to have done so, and we are left wondering what Paul was doing between 1778 and 1784. Another query: Why does he say he was in Leake's Corps (notice first entry for Edward Carscallen says Leake's Corps too). Was he just the man who got them settled in a billet in 1776, or what does it mean? Leake was not in the QLR was he?

Two other Haldimand entries may throw some light on Heck's doings. I won't burden you with them. They suggest he may have been ill a long time.

May I ask one more question, then I'll stop. I have always wondered how they happened to settle in three different places in Canada, but especially why Peter Miller went alone (ie without Camdne Valley friends) to Mississquoi Bay. Yesterday I found his name in a list of men who served on the Albany Committee of Correspondence, and I have another document to suggest that he may have wavered towards the rebel side more than the others (though his descendant Lampee, an American from Boston, never suggests this). Of course he joined up eventually with the rest. But could they have been annoyed with him over this, so that he decided to leave the clan? He didn't cut himself off completely, however. He was married to John Lawrence's Mother, and later his daughter married Samuel Embury (son of the first husband of Mrs. John Lawrence). I think I've answered part of my question: Hecks and Lawrences may have stopped at Augusta, rather than coming on to Bay of Quinte, so Lawrence could be a bit nearer his Mother.

Please forgive this length, and be sure any comments to clarify it will be welcomed.

Sincerely,

Eula C. Hepp

why didn't you both come to the O.H.S. convention?
June 21-24. Brissatt.

* You will see that twice in this letter I have contradicted myself - and in "talking out loud" got the right interpretation on the second try.
